

Sally Colella

Sally Colella is a leadership and team coach with more than 25 years of experience. She translates cutting-edge frameworks into practical approaches that provide clients with new pathways to reach their goals.

A particular area of expertise includes working with leaders to develop a diverse network of relationships that are aligned with the results they seek.

Select clients include: Cisco Systems, Barclays, Genentech/Roche, Novo Nordisk, World Bank, US Securities and Exchange Commission, Open Society Foundations and the National Cooperative Bank.

Sally is co-author of the Organizational Network Fieldbook, published by Jossey-Bass in June 2010. She has spoken about executive development topics for The Human Capital Institute, the CLO Magazine Symposium, the Conference Board, and the USC Marshall Center of Organizational Effectiveness.

She is a founding member of the Connected Commons, a group of business and academic leaders who believe networks are the primary organizing paradigm of work and share best practices regarding social network science and applications. Sally facilitates a virtual “spotlight” series each month, sharing new insights and approaches from researchers and practitioners.

Prior to launching her consulting practice, Sally was an organization development leader at Fannie Mae, The Washington Post and the National Cooperative Bank (NCB). Key achievements include working closely with executive teams to develop organizations and cultures that enable employees to effectively execute business strategy.

Sally received her BA in Economics from the University of Virginia, a Graduate Certificate in Organization Development from Georgetown University and an MA in Organization Management from the Fielding Graduate University. She has served as an adjunct faculty member for the Georgetown University. PCC Certified coach by ICF (International Coaching Federation).

Qualifications include MBTI, FIRO B, DISC, Voices 360 and EQ-I 2.0 360. She lives near Washington, D.C.

Contact:                      email:                      sally@colellaassociates.com
   tel:                              301.367.8142
   skype:                        sallycolella